Search for Property or Development Information

Audience
- General public

Purpose
- View property information by searching an address
- View application or permit activity

Required
- Nothing

Background
You do not need to be a registered user or signed in to find property information, or application or permit activity.

There are a couple ways to perform searches using the Online Permit Center Portal.

Steps
The first search method is Property Search.

This method of searching works best when you know the location address as it returns all information pertaining to the property.
From the Property Locator search page, you may either type a street address or tax lot number in the search bar or use the map to zoom in and select a property.

|
Both options take you to the Property Review page where you may view property information as well as related application and permit activity.	Property Review Tax Lot Number: 171232CA05100 Printable ▾ Property Details Tax Lot Number: 171232CA05100 Status: Active Legal Description: LOT: 1,2, BLOCK: 8, BEND ▾ Addresses | Street #	Pre-Direction	Street Name	Direction	Unit #	Status

The second option is to search by application type from the portal home page.
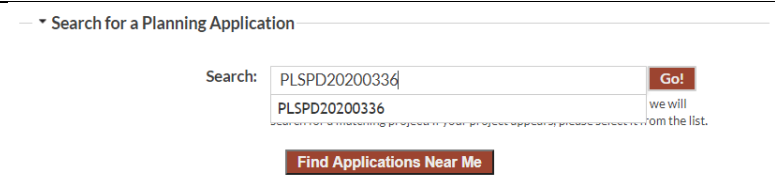

This method of searching works best if you know the type of application you are searching for and know the project number, address or name of a contact on record.
For example, if you are searching for a land use application, choose the Application Search under the Planning and Historic service area. From the search page, you have the option of typing in the search bar or using the map to select a property.
If you search by project number, you will be taken directly to the Application Status page.

Searching by address, tax lot number or name of a contact on the permit may return multiple results.
