Nominee Rejected The crisis precipitated Sunday by De Gaulle's resignation reached its worst deadlock so far when the communists, contrary to general expectation, rejected the socialist nominee, Vincent Auriol, to head the government. Communist leaders then renewed a demand from which they had been diverted momentarily for the nomination of Felix Gouin, socialist president of the assembly. Gouin announced he was not interested. With no solution in sight, the assembly held a short session to hear De Gaulle's letter of resignation, addressed to and read by Gouin.

General Waylaid By Service Wives

Washington, Jan. 22 (UP) — A score of servicemen's wives waylaid Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on his way to a congressional hearing today and demanded a speedup in release of their husbands.

The group confronted the army chief of staff outside the office of Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee. He invited them into his office where they fired a barrage of questions and complaints at him for more than half an hour.

The General of the army said later the experience was "emotionally upsetting."

The women told Eisenhower that:

1. Fathers should be released in order to take care of their families.

2. Childless married men should be released in order to start the families they have thus far been prevented from founding.

First Bend Mayor Dies In Virginia

Arthur M. Goodwillie, 67, first mayor of Bend and a resident of the town for several years shortly following its incorporation in the late fall of 1904, died on Jan. 15, at his home in Charlottesville, Va., it has been learned here. Old timers recall that Goodwillie was elected for a year, and left here about 1906. He took office on Jan. 16, 1905.

Serving with Mr. Goodwillie on Bend's first council were C. W. Merrill, Duncan McMillan, Fred Shonquest, C. H. Erickson, C. M. Redfield, and J. L. West. J. M. Lawrence was recorder and E. R. Lester served as marshall.

Born in Chicago
Mr. Goodwillie was born in Chicago on Nov. 15, 1878. He was graduated from Williams college in 1901, and came west in the early years of the century, attracted here from his home in Chicago by irrigation development. He returned to Chicago, after disposing of his holdings in Bend.

Mr. Goodwillie is survived by his wife, one son, James Goodwillie, of Milwaukee, Wis., and two daughters, Mrs. Roger Blanchard, of Columbia, Mo., and Miss Peggy Goodwillie, a junior at Wellesley college.

Death of Mr. Goodwillie occurred at the University of Virginia hospital.

Says YW Would Up Its Community Value

By WENIFRED MORRISON

Acting in an advisory capacity, Miss Belle Ingels, staff member of National YWCA Board, in an interview yesterday outlined objectives to be pursued in a four-day visit to the Lynchburg organization.

Miss Ingels travels in Southern regions to aid associations in their work in "community organizations with a Christian purpose." Purpose of her visit here is to help Lynchburg's YWCA to "make the adjustment of our work to the war's cessation."

"YWCA's are looking ahead to meet the needs of the new times," she said. "This call for a redefining of community planning, and the YWCA will cooperate with these changing plans by special cooperation with case work agencies, different kinds of employment services, programs for adult education, recreation and vocational advice available in the communities," she continued.

The organization will increase its efforts in behalf of young women and girls, Miss Ingels stated.

"Since the YWCA has had a long time experience in bringing together and relating people who have different resources and different problems, we feel that it has a leading contribution to make in community planning," she declared.

"The Association's experience in tackling problems directly with the individual affected, and also in the field of social action, where an effort is made to set at the condition causing the problem makes for a combination which will prove most effectively in serving needs of the community.

The Association has a real job to do in helping people relate themselves to their community in such a fashion as to be an experiment in democracy. To do this, we work with people in groups, keeping in mind at all times that they are individuals with varied backgrounds and personal needs."

Almond Insists Government Should Get Out of Business

Last night, J. Lindsey Almond, Jr., Sixth District Democratic candidate for House of Representatives in the first speech here of his campaign, called for the government to "get out of business and stay out except insofar as it is necessary to regulate and restrict monopolistic tendencies and predatory interests."

The former Judge of Roanoke's Hustings Court in his 15-minute talk by radio, challenged alleged charges by Republicans that he is a "bankrolled candidate."

Committee of this district pursuant to law and the party plan, gave ample notice for the calling of a convention for the selection of a candidate. More than the required 30-days notice was given. The truth further is that this candidate of the opposition (George A. Revercomb, Jr. of Covington) was chosen as a convention called upon such short notice as to make it approximate an overnight proposition.

"Furthermore, I am not the candidate of any segment of society. I will not be diminished to, controlled by or subservient to any clique, faction or organization, political or otherwise," Mr. Almond said.

INFORMAL STRATEGY

Strategy for the remainder of the campaign was discussed internally at a dinner party given by City Democratic Chairman William Carter and other party leaders at the Virginia before the candidate's radio address.

Mr. Almond called for abolition of every non-essential Federal agency and bureau and consolidation and coordination of every overlapping and duplicating agency.

"I shall fight for economy in government wherever its effectuation will not do violence to the orderly and expeditious administration of necessary governmental functions," he said.

The special election will be held January 22 to choose a successor to

Retired Businessman Founded Ore. Town; Was Youngest Mayor

Arthur L. Goodwillie of Roanoke, Albemarle County, retired businessman, died early today at the University of Virginia Hospital after a long illness. He was the husband of the former Miss Margaret Ladig of Lynchburg, whom he married in 1924.

Funeral services will be conducted at noon Thursday at the residence by Mr. Goodwillie's son-in-law, the Rev. Roger Blanchard. Burial will be in Spring Hill Cemetery, Lynchburg, at 2:30 P.M.

Born in Chicago November 15, 1878, Mr. Goodwillie was the son of James G. and Augusta Johnson Goodwillie. His grandfather, David Goodwillie, came to this country from Scotland in 1834, settling in Chicago, where his family grew up and his sons took prominent places in the business life of that city.

Mr. Goodwillie graduated from Williams College in 1891 and was a member of Zeta Psi. He was one of this country's foremost authorities on rehabilitation of rundown urban areas. In the early part of the century he founded Bend, Ore., town which numbered more than 10,000 in the last census. He was attracted to the West by the possibilities of a huge irrigation plan. With a friend he purchased large tracts of land in the area.

WAS YOUNGEST MAYOR

When only 23 Mr. Goodwillie was named mayor of the town he founded. He received nationwide recognition as the youngest "town father" in the country.

Disposition of his holdings in Bend on a rising market, he returned to Chicago where he helped to establish the investment banking firm of C. F. Childs & Co., which became the largest purchasers of government bonds in the country. Later he set up Goodwillie & Co.

Mr. Goodwillie became interested in the $17,000,000 reconditioning program of the Home Owners Loan Corporation and went to Chicago as supervisor of the program for the midwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodwillie became residents of the Albemarle community at Roslyn, on Earlysville Road. In addition to his wife, Mr. Goodwillie is survived by a son, James Goodwillie of Milwaukee, two daughters, Mrs. Roger Blanchard of Columbia, Mo., and Miss Peggy Goodwillie, a junior at Wellesley College, and a brother, Clarence Goodwillie of New York.

MRS. JESSIE E. DILLON

Mrs. Fannie Ashby Dillon, widow of Jessie Emmett Dillon, died at 7:30 A.M. today in Memorial Hospital.

Born May 20, 1886, in Revere, Mass., she was the daughter of Marion and Harry McCall Sampson.

Mrs. Dillon is survived by three sons, L. A. Dillon of Atlanta, L. J. Dillon of Indianapolis, Ind., and M. D. Dillon of Lynchburg, and a sister, Mrs. Mattie Wright of Macon.

Funeral services will be held in Dixfield Memorial Chapel Thursday morning at 11. Burial will be in Spring Hill Cemetery.

Milk Official Heads Move To Organize

J. W. Robertson, Milk Sanitarian with the Lynchburg Health Department, has been named chairman of an organizing group of Virginia milk sanitarians and sanitation officers who met recently in Charlottesville.

The group, he said, is being organized to develop uniform sanitary supervision and methods in the inspection of dairy farms and milk plants.

Mr. Robertson has been City Milk Sanitarian over a year, coming to Lynchburg from Charlottesville where he was connected with the Bureau of Health.

Funeral services will be conducted at noon Thursday at the residence by Mr. Goodwillie's son-in-law, the Rev. Roger Blanchard.

Burial will be in Spring Hill Cemetery, Lynchburg, at 2:30 P.M.

A. L. Goodwillie Is Dead At 67

Was Financier And Housing Authority

Arthur L. Goodwillie, of "Roxlyn," Albemarle County, retired financier and one of the country's foremost authorities on the rehabilitation of urban slum areas, died early this morning at the University of Virginia Hospital following a long illness.

The funeral will be held from the residence at noon Thursday, the service to be conducted by his confidant, the Rev. Roger Blanchard. Interment will follow at 2:30 o'clock in Spring Hill Cemetery, Lynchburg.

He was born in Chicago November 14, 1878, son of the late James Gunn Goodwillie and Stella Johnson Goodwillie. In 1881 his grandfather, David Goodwillie, came from Scotland to this country and located in Chicago, where the family grew up and his sons took prominent places in the business life of that city.

Mr. Goodwillie graduated from Williams College in 1901, and was a member of Zeta Psi fraternity.

Founded Oregon Town

He was one of this country's foremost authorities on the rehabilitation of run-down urban areas. In the early part of the century he founded Becht, Ore., a town which numbered more than 10,000 in the last census. He was attracted to the West from his native Chicago by the potentialities of a huge irrigation plan. With a friend, he purchased large tracts of land in the area. When only 31 he was named mayor of the town he founded, and received nation-wide recognition as the young "Town Father" in the country.

Disposing of his holdings in Bend on a rising market, he returned to Chicago, where he helped to establish the investment banking firm of C. F. Childs & Co., which became the largest purchasers of Government bonds in the country. Later he set up Goodwillie & Co.

Retired With H.O.C.

In 1934 Mr. Goodwillie married Miss Margaret Lucado, of Lynchburg. In 1935 he and his wife made reservations for a trip to Europe, the plan there for him. He stopped off in Washington and the trip was never made. He became intensely interested in the $10,000,000 rehabilitation program of the Home Owner Loan Corporation and chairman of the program for the Midwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodwillie have been residents of this community since 1939, when they purchased a farm, "Roxlyn," on the Earlysville Road.

Besides his wife, Mr. Goodwillie is survived by a son, James Goodwillie, of Milwaukee, Wis., and two daughters, Mrs. Roger Blanchard, of Columbia, Md., and Mrs. Peggy Goodwillie, a junior at Wellesley College. He also leaves one brother, Clarence Goodwillie, of New York City.

Argentina Acts To Insure Food

Measures Are Taken As Lockout Continues

By Lawrence Nichols

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 14.—The government took measures today to insure an adequate food supply to the populous as a massive锁out paralyzed Argentina. Businessmen in protest against the labor policies of the military régime moved into their homes.

Following a Ministry of Industry and Commerce announcement that the government is taking steps necessary to assure a supply of needed articles to the people, government agents began sealing off warehouses against businessmen under a wartime law banning speculation.

None of the warrants were served immediately, however, and the only police action occurred in the provincial capital of San Luis, where the president of the chamber of commerce was arrested a few hours after members refused a police request to open the stores. He later was released without being charged.

Representatives of the business men later issued a statement denouncing the closure and asserted that any law and asserting that the government would be overstepping its official powers if it attempted to take any action. They asked the government to explain extension of the wartime law which the Ministry of Industry and Commerce had said it would cover.

Housewives of Buenos Aires, half million homes used an absence of food or walked the streets in search of a few small stores which were willing to open and supply new customers. Milk deliveries continued, as did transportation and public services, but food deposit and neighborhood stores were closed.

Employers in order to emphasize that their action was directed against the government decree ordering year-end bonuses and salary increases and not against the workers generally promised to pay wages for the three days of the closure.

Since Thursday afternoon from the Hill and Irving Funeral Home the service to be conducted by Dr. C. F. Price, Williams pastor of the Hill, will follow in Monticello Memorial Park.
