Reduce and Reuse First

Choosing secondhand items, repairing what's broken, and finding new purposes for materials we already have not only saves money but also conserves natural resources and protects our environment.

By making the most of existing products and food, we reduce the demand for new production, which in turn lessens the environmental impact on our communities and the planet.

Americans throw away over 32 billion pounds
of textiles a year!

42% of greenhouse gas emissions are associated with the energy to produce, process, transport and dispose of food and goods.
