

Traffic Calming Improvements in your Neighborhood

Safer street designs

Diverters are physical barriers that restrict vehicles but allow walking and bicycling. Installing these in Bend neighborhoods intends to minimize cut-through vehicle traffic in key locations and reduce conflicts between motor vehicles and people who walk or ride bikes. The Bend City Council approved diverters at some intersections in Bend along Neighborhood Greenways, which are safer routes for people to walk or bike on lower-speed residential streets.

Installation updates

Thanks for your patience during the installation process. The City removed temporary signage, added paint and striping, and installed rock in the basins to improve aesthetics.

The City will monitor the pilot projects to evaluate if they should become permanent cost-effective solutions to providing safer streets in Bend.

How traffic flow works with diverters

In the Old Bend neighborhood:

As part of the Bend Bikeway project, the City installed diverters in the Old Bend Neighborhood in May 2026 to reduce cut-through traffic and minimize conflicts with cyclists or pedestrians. Based on public feedback, locations were identified along the existing Neighborhood Greenway routes:

- at the NW Sisemore Street/NW Colorado Avenue intersection, to restrict northbound traffic from entering NW Sisemore off of Colorado
- at NW Delaware Avenue/NW Lava Road and NW Georgia Avenue/NW Lava Road, to restrict certain vehicle turning movements.
